

Pisang Peak

Pisang Peak lies North of Manang valley in the Annapurna region at a height of 6091 meters. The western flank of the mountain is guarded by a hanging glacier and offers considerable challenge. This Pisang Peak Climbing Expedition offers gorgeous views of Dhaulagiri, Manaslu, Annapurna and more. We follow the classic route of Annapurna Circuit trek to climb this Pisang peak. Pisang peak offers good scope for exploration.

Detailed Itinerary

Day 1: Drive from Kathmandu to Syange

You leave in the morning for about 8 hours scenic bus drive to Syange'. Its a black topped and bumpy road which takes us to syange. You might need to change the bus at Besisahar depending on the road condition

Day 2: Syange to Tal

After breakfast we continue our trek following the dusty road for about 2 hours to chamje and after crossing over the bridge we head up hill walking following the trekking trail to Tal. Enjoy the natural water fall and stay overnight in tal.

Day 3: Tal to Thanchok

We continue our trekking trail after breakfast for about an hour and we hit the dusty road again for about two hours to Danaque. On the way we could see view of Mt. Manaslu. After Danaque we avoid the dusty road and walk steep up hill through forest to Timang for about 1 hrs from where we could have nice view over mountain. After having lunch we follow the road again to Thanchok.

Day 4: Thanchok to Pisang

We follow the road again through the pine trees all the way to Chame. Chame, the administrative centre of the Manang district. It is a large village packed with small shops and tea-houses, an army post and a large school. From here we follow the marshyangdi river all the way to Pisang from where you could have nice view of Mountain. You could enjoy the Buddhist cultural here.

Day 5: Pisang to Pisang Base Camp

After breakfast we have steep uphill track through the pine forests to Pisang Base Camp. The trail opens up with dramatic view of monstrous mountains. The trail further ascends through sparse woods and pastures. An open flat alpine section at Base Camp is where we nestle overnight.

Day 6: Base Camp Rest Day

A perfect location to witness mountain from such a close distance persuades us to spend one spare day here. It is also crucial for us to have a rest day here so that we can acclimatize. We can hike to a view point as well so that we can have better views. We can also have small practice session with ropes and gears.

Day 7: Base Camp to High Camp

The trail gets released with steep track to High Camp. The trail to west ridge through alpine meadows with no sign of human takes us to High Camp allowing you to have overview of Pisang peak and confluences.

Day 8: Summit Pisang – Return to Base Camp

Early start with steep climb, uses of ropes takes us to the summit offering extra ordinary views. Return to base camp for overnight.

Day 9: Base Camp to Pisang, 5–6 hours

Following the spare woods and pastures initially and pine forest later on we descend back to Pisang again. En route farewell glimpses of mountains make us feel good. On arriving Pisang we can have small celebration.

Day 10: Pisang to Nawal

After breakfast we head up hill to upper pisang where you could see nice monastery and super view of Mt. Annapurna II and III, Gangapurna, Lamjunghimal and others. After here we continue our trek throw pipe forest and climb steep up hill for about an hour to gharu and level walk from here takes us to Nawal.

Day 11: Nawal to Manang

Your day start with down hill walk for about an hour and level walk through pine forest and pasture field which takes us to Braga where we meet the road again and follow the road all the way to manang where you see colourful chortens ,monastery, Tibetan style house,culture and landscape. Perfect mountain view could been seen from here.

Day 12: Manang to Yak kharka

Today we cross a stream and start climb to a village over Manang and continue our climb turning northwest. The trail follows northward passing few pastures, village, meadows and old mani wall before we reach to our destination.

Day 13: Yak Kharka to Phedi

Today you have an easy two or three hour walk up to the lodge at ThorungPhedi where you will have lunch and stay overnight there getting to bed early for your early morning start the next day; the big pass day.

Day 14: Thorangphedi- Thorung La - Muktinath

Today you hit the trail early for about 5 hour walk to the top of the Thorung La at 5416m. From where you could see surrounding peaks as well as some part of Mustang. The descent is almost as demanding as the ascent to the top of the pass, with a steep rough trail down to Muktinath. Muktinath is an important pilgrimage site for Buddhists and Hindus, sacred for its auspicious combination of earth, fire and water.

Day 15: Muktinath trek to Jomsom

This morning you have an easy walk following the road down to the Kali Gandaki riverbed, which you follow down to Jomsom. The Kali Gandaki valley gets very windy in the afternoons so it's a good idea to keep moving on the trail and get into Jomsom in time for lunch if possible.

Day 16: Jomsom - Pokhara

This morning you have an easy walk following the road down to the Kali Gandaki riverbed, which you follow down to Jomsom. The Kali Gandaki valley gets very windy in the afternoons so it's a good idea to keep moving on the trail and get into Jomsom in time for lunch if possible.
